WIDER BREACHES.

The Low-Tax Republicans Divorced Forever From the High-Tax Wing of the Party.

Lot of Charming Scurrility and Billingsgate Indulged in by the Speakers.

Last night the Low-tax Republicans held ratification meeting on the bluff. That hey are hopelessly at odds with the Highthey are hopelessly at odds with the High-tax wing there is no longer any reason to doubt. The meeting last night was a con-tinuous vituperation of the High-taxers. It was not a large gathering, and the utmost want of enthusiasm was present. The moon smiled down serenely upon the forty boys and 100 men present. Very few Low-tax men were present. The crowd was made up estly of High-tax Endicals and curious Democrats. There was not a single hearty cheer during the whole meeting. If it had been midwinter, the enthusiasm could not have been more restrained and frigid. A SHOWER-BATH.

After several meiancholy tunes by the and Judge Bigelow arose and delivered a cold shower ba h speech, which did not re-ceive a single cheer. The crowd didn't ap-preciate the judge. They wanted ancedote and joke more than any rational appeal made to them. Judge Bigelow denied that his wing could be properly called the Low-tax Republicans. It was the party that wanted to settle the debt honectly. It was not a party of repudiators. He contended that the railroads were the chief debtors in State-debt question, and that the State was to timble for their debt. The platforms of the High-tax Republicans and the Democrats were swindles and cheats. He spoke about se merits of the different candidates for the county offices on the Low-tax ticket. He was certain that Mahou if elected, would not ask the county for $1500 additional to pull him arough. Sheriff Athy was too much of a entleman; he ought to do the work of one if his deputies. If Mahon were elected he ald not hesitate to work. The boys interred considerably with the judge's speech, d he concluded amidst universal satisfac-

AN EMBARRASSED ORATOR. The next orator was a colored man named Froman, who was glad of the opportunity to address his fellow-citizens, though he claimed to be very much embarrassed. He told several embarrassing stories to help him out. He said the colored people had a sema-jority of 467 in the county, but in spite of that they were modest, and out of eight can-didates they only asked for two. He spoke of the etherial High-tax aristocracy that lived in the clouds. They had asked the Low-taxers to come up, but being refused said, "Well, by the godn, if you don't come up we will come down." They did all come down but Fred Hunt. Sheriff Athy, said the speaker, was not common enough, and there but Fred Hunt. Sheriff Arthy, said the speaker, was not common enough, and there ought to be a change in his office. The speaker was a member of the harmonical commission that had met a few days previously. The adjustment had gone on well until they came to register, and there they busted on Hunt. The Low-taxers had offered to withdraw Evans if Hunt were withdrawn, and have an entirely new man hat, nothing and have an entirely new man, but nothing but Hunt would satisfy them. The steady refusal of Hunt to withiraw looked suspi-cious, and it seemed to him that Hunt was playing into the hands of the Democrats. If playing into the hands of the Democrats. If that were so, he had only to say as God said to Satan, 'Get thee behind me, you black scoundrel." It reminded the speaker of an oid Quaker who was bitten by a dog, and who said, "I will not kill thee, but will give thee a bad name." So he cried mad dog, and others killed him.

DIDN'T KNOW WHAT TO SAY. I. F. Dorris, another colored man, was at a loss to know what to say; but that didn't prevent him from saying. He was one of the musicians at the conciliation concert. He spoke about the bad feeling manifested there. He told a few stale jokes, and wound up by saying that he wanted to see Memphis as it was when he was a boy. He tried to chaw up that bad little wing of High-tax

A WINDY SPEAKER. Arabi Shaw was the next speaker. He spoke substantially as follows: It was said that there was division in the Republican that there was division in the Republican ranks, but there was no more division than in the Democratic ranks. The botters of both parties would do them more good than harm. They are both Bourbon elements. It was these elements that have impoverished the South and that have impoverished the South and that have murdered 36,000 negroes. There are in Shelby county now sixty-five white R:publicans. There used to be 800 or 900. There are just enough now to vote and hold the offices. They don't want any more. There are enough now to hold LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Now we sent a long, lank individual named Vernon to the Legislature. [The speaker here made a vicious attack on Mr. Vernon, and as the Appeal does not care to publish slush, it is omitted.] I am not alarmed, because the Federal ring will not carry 150 votes. We are solid in all but two districts. I have nothing particularly to say against the Democratic nominees. They are cleaver enough but they are legals.

There is war existing between some of our prings. The Eureka Springs Echo having amonument that there were 663 arrivals there in June, the Hot Springs Sentinel-Star comments on the statement rather contempts ously, as follows: "Two years ago more than that number was reported to have arrived in one day by the Eureka papers.
